IRRIGATION COMPANIES ARE TAKING STOCK IN THE PROVO-WEBER RIVERS PROJECT

Meetings have recently been held by various local irrigation companies to determine whether or not they would subscribe for stock in the Reservoir to be built at Echo and in the diversion canal joining Weber and Provo Rivers; and up to date four of the companies have subscribed for such stock.

Since our issue of last week, both the Charleston and the Daniel Irrigation Companies have decided to add to their holdings of water and, as a result, 700 acre feet of reservoir stock and 21 second feet capacity in the diversion canal have been taken by these two companies.

This makes a total now of 1350 acre feet subscribed for in the Reservoir and 55½ feet capacity in the canal.
